Fourth Sunday of Easter: April 21st

Paul and Barnabas encountered both violent rejection and joyful acceptance of the message that they preached. We, too, may meet with mixed reactions when we use our gifts in the service of God. But, the Gospel assures us, the reward for those who follow faithfully is eternal life.

Please pray for infants Sofia Esmeralda Lozada Szemeredi and for Jon Raphael Martin, baptized at St. George's, April 6th Parents are Gustavo and Jassica Lozada, and Jhong & Daffne Martin. Please pray also for Sophie Florence Martin, child of David Martin and Kerri née Hart, whose Baptism took place on April 14th, at St. George's. May the grace and life of the Holy Spirit lead them and their families in the ways of holiness.

FOURTH SUNDAY OF EASTER (C)

Acts 13:14, 43-52 / Rv 7:9, 14b-17 / Jn 10:27-30

One of the first things parents of a newborn learn is how incredibly strong their baby's grip is. Our daughter, like most newborns, clenched onto her father's and my fingers immediately after birth—and she wouldn't let go! We called it her death grip. Yes, it's a reflex, but it's one that reaches into your soul. You realize quickly what a hold this person has on you—physically and emotionally.

On this Good Shepherd Sunday, Jesus speaks in the Gospel about not letting anyone take his flock out of his hand. His hold on us is even tighter than a newborn's, but it's certainly not a death grip. Quite the opposite—it's a life grip. No matter how far we scatter or how wide a path we walk, Jesus always has us in his hands. He offers us life abundant here on earth and life eternal in heaven.

Parents of newborns have such an emotional response to their child's grip because they've spent so much time with this child—feeling her movements in utero, seeing his picture in ultrasounds, preparing their lives for this new being. There's an intimate connection.

Sheep respond loyally to their shepherd's voice because they spend so much time together in the fields. The same must be true for our relationship with our Good Shepherd. Unless we're committed to spending significant time with him, we can't expect to benefit from his life grip. He always holds us, but we need to offer him that same devoted attention and intimacy.

Where can we find more time in our week to behold—and be held by—our God?

APRIL 23 : SAINT GEORGE

Little is known about George, killed for his faith at Lydda, in Palestine, at the beginning of the fourth century. It seems that he was a soldier in the Roman army, was quite involved in the organization of a Christian community at Urmiah (modern Iran), and visited Britain on an imperial expedition. During the 14th-century reign of Edward III, he was made a patron of the kingdom. George is also patron of several Mediterranean countries, as well as several European countries and cities, and the Boy Scouts. In the Middle East, he is linked with the prophet Elias, under the name El Khader (the living).

Until modern times George played an important role in popular feasts and folklore: 12th-century literature, for example, hails him as the dragon-slayer. During the Middle Ages, he was a popular patron of knights, soldiers and crusaders, who adopted "St George's Arms," a red cross on a white background. The red cross appears on the modern Union Jack. The date of his festival is connected with the arrival of spring.
