Pastoral Reflection: Ascension of Our Lord (Luke 24, 46-53)
Inspired and Directed

Everyone in the world needs a little inspiration. An uplift and a sense of well being. The problem comes in the direction of that inspiration.
But how does God give inspiration with direction?

In a small room tucked away in a forgotten part of Jerusalem, some scared followers of a Galilean rabbi were getting a pep talk. A little inspiration. But the focus of the talk was not on them, but on the great work God was doing in their midst.

The sun's rays give light while giving warmth and warmth while giving light. Inspiration is a heavenly ray that brings into our hearts a warm light that makes us see the good, and fires us on to its pursuit. All that lives upon earth is dulled by the winter's cold, but with the return of vital heat in the springtime, all things get back their movement. Ground animals run more swiftly; birds fly higher and sing more gaily; plants more pleasingly put forth their leaves and flowers. Without inspiration our souls would live idle, sluggish, useless lives, but with the coming of the divine rays of inspiration, we feel a light mingled with a life-giving warmth that enlightens our understanding and awakens and animates our will by giving it the strength to will and do the good that pertains to eternal salvation. When God had formed the human body out of "the slime of the earth," as Moses says, "He breathed into it the breath of life, and man was made into a living soul" — that is, into a soul which gave life, movement, and activity to the body. This same eternal God breathes and infuses into our souls the inspirations of supernatural life to the end, as says the great apostle, that they may become "a life-giving spirit" — that is, a spirit that makes us live, move, feel, and work the works of grace. Hence He who has given us being also gives us operation.

In the Gospel this Sunday, the risen Lord inspired his followers to praise God and wait. The vision was before them. But they needed something more. A little help from heaven above. That help would come soon in the form of wind and fire. Like the disciples in that forgotten room, we need inspiration. God has given us living inspiration, the Spirit itself. The Spirit moves us to vision and action, to praise and worship. We will soon celebrate the gift of the Spirit. Until that time, let us see the wider picture and thank God for his vision, not just our own.

THEME :

Jesus gave to us the responsibility to complete the work that he began. Jesus gave to his followers the task of completing his work by sharing the Good News with the rest of the world.

PRAYER :

Lord Jesus,
On this feast of your ascension into heaven,
Give us new eyes to see your face
In the faces of those who are in need.

Give us new ears to hear your voice
In the voices of those who cry out in pain.

Give us new tongues to tell your story
To those who have never heard it.

Give us new hearts to share your love
With those who have not yet experienced it.
