Is Trust in Jesus Worth The Cost?

Have you ever found belief in something easier than trust in someone?

In "Star Wars, the Phantom Menace," a Jedi knight believed the young Anakin Skywalker fulfilled an old prophecy. The young boy would balance the dark and light sides of the Force. The Jedi knight only came to this conclusion after a test of the boy's sub-molecular structure which came back positive. The knight, in this case, based his belief upon science. Christians base their faith not so much on the facts, but in a trust relationship with Jesus of Nazareth. Trust of a person, not knowledge of the facts or obedience demanded by duty, defines the Christian life. In John's gospel, Jesus revealed trust as the key to eternal life.

Many religions call God "Father," as he who created and sustains all things. Christianity's unique claim to the title lies in the relationship between God and Jesus of Nazareth. As John's gospel stated, the Father sent his Son into the world. That is, God commissioned Jesus to reveal the true nature of the Father. In doing so, Jesus revealed himself as the Father's only true Son, or as John's gospel stated, God's only begotten Son. This relationship transcends time into the eternal.

At the Council of Nicaea (325), the Church defined the relationship between the Father and the Son as "consubstantial." That is, the Father and the Son share the same divine nature. Eventually, the Church extended the definition to include the Spirit. Hence, the belief in the Trinity was codified.

Name someone you trust. Why do you trust that person? Could the qualities you list apply to Jesus? Why/why not? As John's community found, many people put a trust relationship at arm's length. Even today, talk of trust based upon love seems too naive, too idealistic. The real world, as common wisdom implies, rewards the devious, those who build their lives on money and power. Those who point to a greater goal find themselves punished by the world.

But, is a trust relationship built on love worth the effort? Gentle reader, if you have reached this point in the essay, you have already answered that question for yourself. Yes, love makes the effort worthwhile, the outreach of trust realistic.
