Development & Peace-Message for the week of MAY 13th

May 13: World Communications Day

"The truth will set you free" (John 8:32) is the theme chosen by Pope Francis for World Communications Day on May 13, 2018. Aimed at tackling "fake news", i.e. unfounded information that fuels the polarization of opinion and peoples, the Catholic Church proposes a reflection on the causes and consequences of misinformation in the media. The Pope invites us to promote a "journalism of peace... A journalism less concentrated on breaking news than on exploring the underlying causes of conflicts, in order to promote deeper understanding and contribute to their resolution by setting in place virtuous processes. A journalism committed to pointing out alternatives to the escalation of shouting matches and verbal violence."

Anticipation

⇒ Anticipation is a national disease. We hate to wait; we want everything now! Yet, we spend more time and energy preparing to celebrate a major event than actually enjoying the event itself. The Christmas season clearly shows off our obsession with anticipation.

⇒ The first reading this Ascension Sunday has an atmosphere of anticipation. The author of Luke's gospel and Acts (who we will refer by his traditional name "Luke") begins the history of the early Church with a note to Theophilus [1]. The first book, the gospel of Luke, put a light on Jesus and his mission. Now, the Church becomes the focus. Like a good writer, Luke drops hints to answer his friend's question: "What will happen next?" Who is this "Theophilus?" We do not know who he was, or if this person even existed. The word Theophilus means "friend of God." It is a proper name; it can be a nickname or title. Because it could mean different things in different contexts, Luke could have been writing to a person or a group of people. Luke could have even been addressing the reader. You or I could be the "friend of God" to whom Luke writes.

⇒ To build up the anticipation, Luke summarizes the life of Jesus [3] and then adds the promise of the Spirit [4-5]. The disciples, however, are not satisfied with this answer. They still want to know when Jesus will return as Messiah [6]. Do they wait for the right event? Luke says, "No." The day and time, even the timing, are reserved for God the Father [7]. "Do not wait for things to be done for you," Luke seems to say. "Wait instead for God's Spirit, so God will give you the power to do it for yourself [8]."

⇒ As Jesus speaks, he disappears from view [9]. But, the disciples still don't get it. They stand there and wait for Jesus' return [10]. Yes, he will return, but don't waste your life in passive anticipation. There is work to be done! And God will send his Spirit to work through us, so we can continue the mission Jesus began.
