THIRTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Prv 31:10-13, 19-20, 30-31 / 1 Thes 5:1-6

Mt 25:14-30 or 25:14-15, 19-21

It takes courage to entrust something precious to someone else. New parents stall when leaving their newborn in a babysitter's care for the first time. A mother repeatedly reminds her daughter on prom night that her grandmother's pearl necklace needs great care. I've hesitated when handing my car keys to my husband, even though he's the safest driver I know. When we entrust another with a precious gift, there's an unwritten covenant that the recipient will use the gift wisely and responsibly.

Such was the covenant between the master and his servants in today's Gospel. Jesus tells us the master entrusted his precious possessions to the servants. This wasn't a random scattering of excess monies. The master gave particular thought to what each servant should receive based on his abilities. The master was thrilled at the first two servants' use of his gift and gravely disappointed in the third's refusal to use the gift responsibly.

We know the master represents God, the servants us, and the talents God's many gifts to us. But have we pondered our unwritten covenant with God—God's courageous choice to entrust to us what is precious to him and an expectation that we'll use these gifts to the best of our ability?

God's gifts aren't randomly scattered, but instead confidently entrusted to us for use in serving others. Perhaps we ought to look at our good health, ample food and clothing, creative talents, and compassion as keys to God's Corvette or the finest pearl necklace in the divine jewelry collection. They're to be used—and used well—in the service of the Lord.
